

Originally from the Baltimore, MD area, Jim moved to the Outer Banks in the early 1990s. In 1995, he started a residential painting business, and he later worked alongside his wife, Charlotte. In 2013, he became a licensed building contractor. That same year, the Lord called him into ministry, and after selling his business, Jim stepped fully into the work God had prepared for him.

Today, Jim serves as the Discipleship Pastor at Outer Banks Community Church and as a pastor at the Church at Spring Arbor. With a strong commitment to spiritual formation, he has received training in Christian discipleship through Real Life Ministries and the Relational Discipleship Network. Ordained as an Elder in 2018 after many years of serving as a Deacon, Jim brings seasoned leadership and compassionate pastoral care to his ministry. His heart for serving others extends beyond the church into the community, where he leads a team of men ministering at the Dare County Detention Center. He also provides strategic leadership as a board member for another local nonprofit organization and facilitates the Seminary for the Ordinary, which offers unaccredited courses from Gordon-Conwell Theological Seminary for those seeking to deepen their biblical understanding and grow in spiritual maturity.
